

MEDIA RELEASE

Hector the Collector

There is a little bit of Hector in each of us!

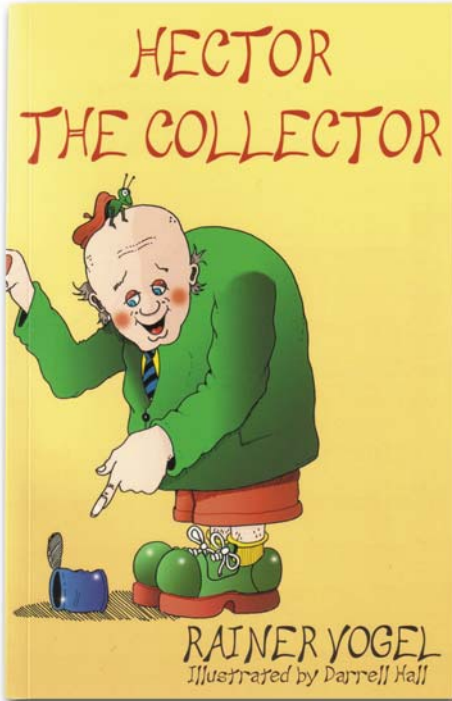

Hector's collection includes everything from shoes to string, from flowers to insects along with even stranger things! So the adventure begins.

Children and adults will enjoy the quirky adventures of Hector, the sometimes naughty but loveable character, who collects strange and unusual things with some surprising results.

To the disgust of adults, but the joy of children, Hector's lack of social skills (burps and other such things) will cause many a giggle to the young reader.

Above all, Hector, with his kind heart, sometimes does things which get him into trouble. Children will learn the consequences, as does Hector, when he has to apologise to the like of Mrs Woogahoomphtoomwa.

Join Hector in four delightful adventures, each charmingly illustrated by Darrell Hall.

About the author

Rainer Vogel is the proud father of three children and is well known amongst a growing number of children as a wonderful storyteller.

He has worked in the advertising industry and is a bit of a Hector himself.

Rainer has a passion for success and a desire to ensure children are provided with life skills and experiences which will give them every opportunity to succeed in their individual pursuits.

Published: 20 July 2007
Published by: Brolga Publishing
Distributed by: PanMacmillan
RRP: $10.95

For Interviews, Review Copies, Permission to Reproduce and further information:

Brolga Publishing: Mark Zocchi - Publisher
Phone: 0414 608 494
Fax: (03) 9879 3936
Email: markzocchi@brolgapublishing.com.au